Introduction:-

The purpose of a field report in the social sciences is to describe the observation of people, places, and events and to analyze that observation data in order to identify and categorize common themes in relation to the research problem underpinning the study.

Nature is the whole of the physical world; it is also what exists outside of any human action. Man is in nature but he acts upon it, thereby emancipating himself of it. He is part and apart of nature. The human nature relationship is the object, in western societies at least, of contradictory representations.
