10. ADMISSION PROCEDURE

For providing equality of opportunity to all and ensuring quality outcome, the University has adopted an open entrance system for admission to PG and PhD programmes. As such candidates willing to take admission into PG programmes have to qualify KBVPGET and the aspiring PhD candidates will have to qualify the KBV-RET. Further, the aspiring PhD candidates have to appear in viva-voce before final selection for PhD admission. On the other hand, admission into the integrated Masters programme is done on merit basis.

11. EXAMINATION PROCEDURE AND DATA

The university has a centralized examination management system through which the end-semester examinations are conducted. The examination procedures in the University have been upgraded from time to time which encompasses the use of IT and innovations that ensure transparency, confidentiality and efficiency of the examination procedures. For quality control, the University sets a good portion of questions papers by external Question setters from other Higher Educational institute. Question papers are dispatched to the Controller of Examinations by the paper-setters in the form of confidential emails or sealed envelopes which off-sets the possibility of breach of security. Moreover, the 'strong-room' located within the premises of his office ensures that all security concerns are addressed. It is noteworthy that instances of tampering with or ‘leaking’ of question papers have not happened in the university.

11.1. Reforms in the Examination Procedures

The examination system is a centralised system under the office of the Controller of Examination. The following reforms have been introduced in the examination procedure in recent period-

- The University ensures that results are declared within 15 days from the last date of the examination.
- The University has introduced Grading system since the academic year 2017-18.

11.2. Processes integrating IT

The examination procedure has been integrated with an IT enabled system through online applications for examination and online generation of admit cards ensuring efficiency and transparency. In the post-examination phase, Information Technology is used in result processing, result declaration as well as in application for revaluation by the students. The University follows a grading system, where the marks are calculated and converted into grades and mark-sheets and certificates are issued. The use of IT in this process has made certain that the margin of error is negligible and there is smooth and speedy declaration of results.

11.3. Continuous Internal Assessment System

The University has been following a semester system since the beginning. This system is premised on continuous internal assessment of students which takes place through home assignments, class attendance, seminar presentations, group discussions, field work and small projects. Besides the above there is one sessional examination per semester. 20% marks in each Semester end examination comes from Internal Assessment. This 20% of marks come from Internal Assessment taken in the form of-

- Home assignment
- Class attendance
- Seminar
- Group discussion/field studies/small projects
- Lab sessions
